EDUCATION SECRETARIAT.

No. M. 4208—G. M. 53-44-2, dated 4*th November* 1944.

The following note regarding the entry into Australia of Indian merchants, tourists and students is published for general information :—

By special arrangements between the Government of the Common-wealth of Australia and the Government of India, facilities are given for Indians who are bona fide merchants, students or tourists to enter Australia and remain so long as they retain their status of merchants, students or tourists and comply with the conditions of their admission.

These conditions are :—

1. MERCHANTS.

The term "merchant" in this connection means a person who proposes and is in a position to engage in promoting trade between Australia and India on a wholesale basis and to a reasonably substantial extent. The value of such overseas trade whether imports or exports should be not less than £500 each year. The term "merchant" does not apply to hawkers and ordinary retail shop-keepers.

If an established business house in India wishes to send a representative to open a branch in Australia, there would be no objection to its doing so on the understanding that the abovementioned conditions would be complied with. If the volume of overseas trade exceeded £1,000 a year in value the representative would be permitted to introduce an assistant.

The manager would be entitled to introduce his wife and minor children with him.

If an established firm doing overseas trade wishes to send a representative to Australia to investigate conditions or book orders, there is no objection to their doing so. Previous authority to land is not necessary but it is desirable that the representative should hold some credentials in addition to a valid passport.

If an Indian merchant wishes to come to Australia to engage in retail as well as wholesale business, it is desirable that full particulars be first furnished to the Department of Interior Canberra, and advice sought as to whether there would be any objection.

Business assistants—local traders.

An Indian engaged in local trade in Australia (other than hawking) would be permitted to introduce an assistant provided his business had a turnover of at least £5,000 year.

In the case of an aged Indian who had a business of longstanding (say of 15 years or more), favourable consideration would be given to the question of allowing him to introduce an assistant or substitute if the business had turnover of at least £2,500.

2. TOURISTS.

The term "tourist" is intended to apply to persons who go to Australia for pleasure travel and sight-seeing and have sufficient funds for the purpose without engaging in lucrative employment there. Tourists should also hold return tickets or tickets to destinations beyond Australia.

Bona fide tourists visitors to Australia, of good standing, may bring Indian servants with them if they so desire. The only requirements are that the servants have passports and return tickets (or tickets to destinations beyond Australia), and that their master guarantees to maintain them while in Australia and to take them back when he leaves. This concession does not apply to Indian servants whose employees intend to remain in Australia indefinitely.

The Australian Customs Tariff permits the importation, free of duty, of tourists' personal effects. These may be brought into Australia without the usual customs entry, and a liberal view is taken as to what goods are covered by the tariff exemption.

3. STUDENTS.

Students should make arrangements before arriving in Australia to attend a School, College, or University. They must be full-time students and furnish satisfactory guarantees for maintenance whilst in Australia. Indian students are not permitted to engage in lucrative employment in Australia

It is desirable, as a rule, that any intending students should communicate beforehand with the Australian Department of the Interior and state what arrangements they propose to make in regard to their studies in Australia and their means of maintenance whilst there.

NOTE.—In the interpretation of Australia's policy of excluding persons of non-European race or descent from permanent residence in Australia, persons of more than fifty per cent of European parentage, are not subject to exclusion.

In cases where there exists a doubt in the mind of the Passport Authority regarding the issue of passports for permanent residence in Australia e.g. to Anglo Indians or wives of British subjects, the proper course is for the facts to be placed before the High Commissioner for the exercise of his discretion."
